

UPCYCLING YOUR FIBERGLASS

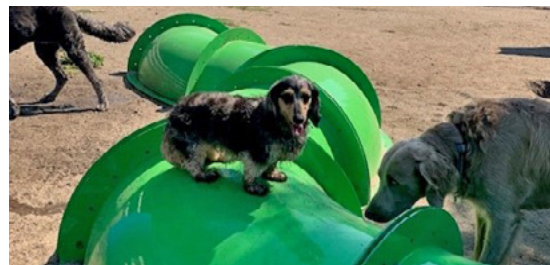

After many seasons of hard work, your well-loved water slide is ready for retirement. Instead of sending your old fiberglass to the landfill, why not repurpose it for a new use? As part of WhiteWater's sustainability initiative, we continue to work with our partner parks to devise new ways to upcycle soon to be retired fiberglass. Here are a few of our suggestions:

Raised Flower Beds

Both durable and sturdy, raised flower beds made from retired fiberglass allow you to create bold and unusual landscaping designs (above).

Dog Park

Provide much needed shade for hot summer days while also giving your four-legged friends equipment for jumps, platforms, solid vented tunnels, and bridges.

Art Installation

Scalable and configurable, use different sized pieces to create unique three-dimensional experiences that also happen to be waterproof.

These are just some of the ways in which we've seen our fiberglass find new life. We'd love to hear your ideas, please send them to sustainability@whitewaterwest.com.
